TSD MARCH OF DIMES PROJECT for Polio Aid 1948-1949

The March of Dimes so recently concluded in the Unit II accomplished a three-fold purpose. Each class in Unit II had a representative on the March of Dimes Committee. The bank is set up and students make their contributions. First, the students were made to feel that they had an important part in something that claimed the deep interest of their teachers; a humanitarian project to help boys and girls who had been made victims of a terrible, crippling malady to be able to run and play again. FIRE SAFETY

Sterling Tadlock, a fireman, spoke to our senior citizens on the topic of fire safety, fire hazards and firemen's duties. He also showed us a fireman's outfit and equipment.

Four firemen from the South First Firehouse No. 17 also arrived and answered questions on fire safety. They also showed us their fire truck. Some of the things we learned were to put out a grease fire in a skillet by putting a lid on it. Don't ever try to throw water on it. It could splatter all over you. Electric and gas stoves are equally dangerous.

Fire extinguishers are tested once a year at businesses. They should have a green mark to show they are full.

Smoke detector batteries should be changed every year. Some batteries don't even last that long. There was a conversation about smoke detectors for the deaf. It seems they are given out free in Houston and some other places but that hasn't happened in Austin. Some seniors suggested Harris Communications is a good place to buy them.

Germany's Sixty-four (64) Pre-World War II Schools for the Deaf Reduced To Only Nine

Copied from TSD Lone Star – March 15, 1949)

Germany had before the war sixty four (64) schools for deaf children. Today only nine (9) schools are continuing their work as before the war. Some of the plants were requisitioned to house displaced persons, but most of these plants were destroyed in the bombardments. Even more grave is the fact that there are no more teachers wishing to learn how to train deaf children. The older teachers have retired, some are still prisoners in Russia, and others perished at the front. In the schools which remain, the question of how to feed and clothe the children is a daily problem; nevertheless, they do not lose hope. The orally educated deaf had a home for their aged at Stuttgart. This was destroyed in the bombardments but is now being rebuilt. The funds were found by a miracle. The authorities pushed the formalities, and the new home, which will shelter sixty persons, will be larger and better than the old one.

There is in Stuttgart a club of deaf athletes, recognized in 1946, which has at present over a thousand members. They play football, handball, light sports, swim, do mountain climbing and play chess. This rebirth of courage in a country so impoverished by war is a splendid thing.-(From the French of Le Messaager, Lausanne, Switzerland).
